

60 NCASA SECOND UPDATE

May 13, 2021

NCASA's 60 Second Update is a weekly brief summary of legislative and policy news affecting public schools in North Carolina.

Legislators Advance Dozens Of Bills Ahead Of 5/13 Crossover Deadline — Members of the NC General Assembly passed dozens of education-related bills ahead of today's bill crossover deadline, or the administrative cutoff date at which all policy bills must have passed at least one chamber to be eligible for additional consideration this legislative session. Since the beginning of the 2021-2022 Session, at least 400 bills relating to K-12 education have been filed, and at least 75 of those bills have met the crossover deadline at the time of this publication. NCASA will be covering key crossover bills in greater depth during a free webinar available to all members on Monday, May 17, and those interested in that comprehensive update should register today.

Senate Delays Vote On Making NC Police, Teachers, State Employees' Discipline Public — State legislators are pushing for transparency about public-sector workers' personnel records in the wake of shootings by law enforcement. But votes on their bill have been postponed twice this week while the lawmakers work behind the scenes. It's at least the fourth time in three decades that North Carolina lawmakers have considered making employee records more public, including one law that passed in 2010 and made public whether the workers had been suspended or demoted. CDC Says Kids As Young As 12 Should Get The Pfizer COVID-19 Vaccine — An independent federal advisory committee on Wednesday recommended that the Pfizer-BioNTech coronavirus vaccine be administered to adolescents aged 12 to 15 — a move expected to be quickly approved by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Wednesday's decision could open up a new front in the fight against COVID-19 after the Food and Drug Administration's extension of its emergency use authorization for the Pfizer vaccine to cover adolescents. The vote was 14 in favor with one recusal. (via NPR)

NC Legislation Would Bar Schools From Advocating That The US Is Racist Or Sexist — North Carolina lawmakers could ban public schools from using lessons that advocate that the U.S. is racist or sexist or was created to oppress members of another race or sex. The N.C. House Education Committee backed a new bill unveiled on Tuesday that prohibits schools from promoting concepts such as the U.S. being racist and that people are inherently racist or sexist, whether consciously or unconsciously.
